The Human Electrical Forces!

How They Control the Organs of the Body.

The electrical force of the numan body, as the nerve fluid may be termed, is an especially attractive department of science, as it exerts so marked an influence on the health of the organs of the body. Nerve force is produced by the brain and conveyed by means of the nerves to the various organs of the body, thussupplying the latter with the vitality necessary to insure their health. The pneumogastric nerve, as shown here, may be said to be the most important of the entire nerve system, as it supplies the heart, lungs, stomach, bowels, etc., with the nerve force necessary to keep them active and healthy. As will be seen by the cutthe long nerve descending from the base of the brain and terminating in the bowels is the pneumogastric, while the numerous little branches supply the heart, lungs and stomach with necessary vitality. When the brain becomes in any way disordered by irritability or exhaustion, the nerve force which it supplies is lessened, and the organs receiving the diminished supply are consequently weakened.

Physicians generally fail to recognize, the importance of this fact, but treat the organ itself instead of the cause of the trouble. The noted 'specialist, Franklin Miles, M. D., L.L. B., has given the greater part of his life to the study of this subject, and the principal discoveries concerning it are due to his efforts. Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine, the unrivaled brain and nerve food, is prepared on the principle that all nervous and many other difficulties originate from disorders of the nerve centers. Its wonderful success in curing these disorders is testified to by thousands in every part of the land.

Restorative Nervine 'cures sleeplessness, nervous prostration, dizziness, hysteria, sexual deblity, St. Vitus dance, epilepsy, etc. It is free from opiates or dangerous drugs. It is sold on a positive guarantee by all druggists, or sent direct by the Dr. Miles Medical Co., Elkhart, Ind., on recelpt of price, 31 per bottle, six bottles for 25, express prepaid.

JUDGE J. J. JACKSON

The Worthy Possessor of a Famous Virginia Name.

IS A NOTED MAN IN MANY WAYS,

And to Write All About Him Would Fill a Volume-The Career of a Man Who is a Familiar Figure in Wheeling-His Appointment as Judge of the United States Court and His Record on the Bench-Au Unique Character in the History of West Virginia.

The Timberman, of Chicago, of December 30, has the following article, which will be read with interest by the INTELLIGENCEE readers:

The Timberman, which is devoted exclusively to the consideration of mat-ters relating to the lumber trade, seldom has opportunity to speak of members of the legal profession except when as judges they may be momentarily exercising all powerful influence on the destiny of some lumber institution. But occasionally it comes in our way to speak at some length of nien who occupy a judicial position. Just at present, when the poplar business is attracting so much attention, a judge on the bench who, through the receivers he has appointed, controls the operations of large institutions and thus becomes for the time being a heavy lum-ber manufacturer, claims especial attention, and it is therefore with pleasure that we notice the eminent position which Judge John J. Jackson, the United States court, sitting at Parkersburg, W. Va., occupies both in the legal profession and in the lumber

As a lumber manufacturer, he has, even during the past dull season, controlled a production of between 40,000, 000 and 50,000,000 feet of poplar, through the Little Kanawha Lumber Company, the Buckhannon River Lumber Company and several smaller con-

Judge Jackson is a notable man in many ways and is remarkable as a type of the southern gentleman, chivalrous, feariess, honest; a good lover and a good hater; of keen intellect and strict-est integrity; combining a somewhat austere manner with a warm heart. In personal appearance he is striking by reason of the mental and moral force manifest in his facé and eye more than in any other way, for he is slight in stature and frame. He is always a gentleman in dress as well as deportment; his manner is quick and nervous. His age is uncertain. He looks like a well preserved man of fifty, with hair and full beard gray and not white; and yet Judge Jackson was appointed to the United States bench by Abraham Lin-coln during the first year of the civil war. That was a good while ago, and they do not put school children in that position. He was so honored by Lin-coln in spite of the fact that up to that time he had been a leading Democrat, as indeed his name would indicate. "Jackson" is a historic name, and for a century the relatives and ancestors of the judge have been identified with the history of the country.

To write all that grows out of a consideration of Judge Jackson would fill more than one volume. For consider: He is a brother of ex-Governor Jacob B. Jackson, who was buried but a few days ago; he is a brother of ex-Judge and ex-Congressman J. Monroe Jackson, he and they of Parkersburg; he was cousin of Stonewall Jackson, the famous Puritan Confederate general, and of William G. Jackson, now of Louisville, also a Confederate general whose abilities were only second to thee of the tamous Stonewall, and who got less wellmerited praise than he should owing to his fame being overshadowed by that of is more renowned cous The paternal grandfather of these brothers and cousins settled in Clarksburg, now the richest town, population considered, in the two Virginias; and at one time, from mines upon his own estate, manufactured iron hollow ware and castings and transported them lown the Monongahela in batteaux to Pittsburgh, the city that now in a measare supplies the world, and did this at a time before she was able to supply herself. This pa ernal grandfather, with the genius for leadership natural to the Jacksons, was a member of Con-gress at the dawn of this century, and with the Jackson fire fought a duel near Washington in 1808. His wife, the grandmother of the Judge and of Stonewall and their brothers, was a sister of Dolly Madison, wife of the President. Judge John J. Jackson, under consideration, is the father of Miss Lillie Jackson, of the board of lady managers of the Columbian Exposition. It is enough to say that he is thoroughly a Jackson, a member of a family to whom it is as natural to lead as to live and to accomplish their purpose by sheer force of character rather than mere popularity. In his long experience on the bench in the mountain district, the judge has tealt with moonshiners of two generations and is now "breaking, in" the third. There are few among these wild mountaineers but view with greater terror standing before him a few minutes as convicted felons than the whole term of imprisonment he may impose. This peculiar influence he has is a Jackson trait not to be described. It is not what he says nor what he does, but the searching personality that emanates from the man-the personification of law outraged. And yet in cases of indiscretion rather than crime, the kindest of men is found on his bench, and his advice given to many a jeans-clad mountaineer has made the first offense the last. This last peculiarity is so pronounced that many thinking men in West Virginia believe that by his kindliness he has reformed more men than have all the penal institutions in the history of the state. At the time of Judge Jackson's appointment land titles in western Vir-ginia were simply chaotic, and it is safe to say that he has decided more intricate questions involving real estate than any man on the bench. He has thus gained a detailed knowledge of values, resources, boundaries and possi-bilities of many of the more important holdings of the state, excelling the combined knowledge of the half dozen leading real estate men in it. So intimate and exact is this knowledge gained in his official position and acquaintance that a stranger might suppose that he had devoted his entire life to a study af these subjects, when the fact is that this knowledge is only incidental. But his thorough information and absolute equity has become so well known that for years there has always been a scramble on the part of the honest debtor and creditor alike to devise some technicality by which cases could be brought out of the state court into his, knowing that thereafter the affair would be run with the attention to every detail that would be given by the ted to a generation of experience. Judge Jackson is a unique character to which we feel our inability to do justice. He is a country judge because owner, and an intellectual mastery uni-

he loves the country and his native state. Like all his race, he is possessed of an ample personal estate and thus is independent of his petty salary as a United States judge. With no itching for great wealth, he is content to devote to the affairs brought before him an ability and industry which, exercised in private life in his own behalf, would make him a financial or industrial magnate. We spoke of his love for the country. Just out of Parkersburg he has a fine farm magnificently stocked, especially with horses, for which he has the family fondness, and it is here that he finds his chief and favorate recreation on the few days when the cares of his official position allow him relaxallon.

THE SONG OF IDLENESS.

By D. Dudley Lovelace in Chicago Inter Ocean. [Respectfully inscribed to Governor William Mc-Kinley.] No longer rolls the furnace smoke

No longer rolls the furnace smoke
From factory and mill;
The rooms that once were full of lie
Are empty now, and still.
The silent mine, the idle loom,
The stores that vacant stand,
Are specters pointing grimly at
A crisis now at hand.
Six months ago we vaguely felt
A presence strange and dread,
But did not know nor realize
Starvation's silent tread.
He had not then put forth his hand
Our happy homes to blight.
The sun was only setting then,
Alas! it now is night.
Free trade, the gloomy shadow dread,
That looms above our land,
Is but the mighty leader of
A dark, destructive band,
That stops the whirling wheels,
And dims the furnace light,
And blasts our growing industries
With pauper labor's blight.
Starvation's pallid features, and
The darker one of crime,
Now stalk uncloaked about our streets
This Democratic time;
While hand in hand through open port

This Democratic time;
While hand in hand through open ports
Come English iron and steel,
The product of a party's power

Protection to repeal.
Our sait will lose its sayer, and
Our forest trees of pine
No longer hear the woodman's ax—
Our mills must cross the line.
Each state has felt the presence of
This might best of wee.

This phantom host of wee;
From East to West, from Morth to South,
Impartially they go.
Each state is reaping whirlwinds, that
Were sown in ninety-two;
And still the cry of famine points
To harvests still in view.

Ye mighty host of voters, have

Ye learned the lesson now?

Bow down a little lower to

The god ye worship, bow;

Free trade, your golden idol, knocks

Upon our seaport door

And claims as princely tribute as

The conquerors of yore.

With idle men and factories,

With hunger everywhere.

With idle men and factories,
With hunger everywhere;
With thousands out of labor,
And hopeless with despair;
No wonder that the winter is
A season that we dread—
The sky is growing blacker with
The storm-rake overhead.
But never yet did midnight gloom
O'erspread an azure sky
Without a distant glow of light
To greet the watching eye.
From out the ranks a hero steps,

To greet the watching eye.
From out the ranks a hero steps,
One whom the people know;
A man whose hand shall grasp the torch
To set the night aglow.
A man to whom the people look
As flowers look toward the sun;
Partent of the state of the

As howers now toward the sun;
Protection's greatest champion,
Ohio's favorite one.
With protection as the burden of
Each spirit-rousing song,
McKinley swept the Buckeye State
One hundred thousand strong.

A shaft of light the darkness breaks
The coming sunlight's glow,
And though the shadows still are here,
The day will come, we know.
'Ere ninety-four shall pass away
Protection shall have won,
And 'midst the whirl of factory wheels
Will idleness be done.
Protected iron will start again
The miner's busy picks;
And when, at last, Old Time shall reach
The magic ninety-six,
A mighty host of voters, who
Have learned by bitter trial,
Will vote for our McKinley by
The solid rank and file.
Will vote for our McKinley, and
For Home Protection too;
A tidal wave of victory
Will sweep the country through. A shaft of light the darkness breaks

A marked change in the temper of speculation characterized the dealings on the stock exchange to-day, and despite the efforts of the bears to depress the market by means of a rumor inuendo and direct offensive movements on the weaker properties, prices moved upward in solid phalanx. With but few of the active stocks lagging behind. Early in the day an earnest effort was made to force the bull pool in Western Union to liquidate by vigorous selling, and strong hopes were indulged in of uncovering stop orders, which should cause a serious break, but the buying was too heavy for the short interest and the result was that sellers of the morning became purchasers in the later dealings, thus materially assisting in the consequent appreciation of the shares. The industrials were rather weak and Distilling and Sugar show declines. The coal stocks were all strong. The general market was benefited by advices from Chicago of a concerted movement to maintain the coal rates. The late dealings were characterized by an activity and firmness, which continued to the close, andvance being recorded on the day of ½ to 5 per cent, the latter in Minnesota and St. Louis preferred.

Dry Goods.

New York. Jan. 4.—Advices from the south and west regarding the condition and prospects of the dry goods trade are generally of a favorable nature. Business shows signs of recuperation upon conservative lines, with a tendency, however, still to avoid anticipating future wants in buying goods. Staple cotions are moderately active. Ginghams and woven wash fabrics show a slow demand except for spring styles, which are rather more active at former prices. Woolen goods show little or no improvement, with prices more or less irregular.

Petroleum.

OIL CITY, PA., Jan. 4.—Opened at 80c; highest 80½c; lowest 70½c; closed at 79c; sales 18,000 barrels; no clearances; shipments 78,792 barrels; runs 80,490 barrels. PITTSBURGH, PA., Jan. 4.—Opened and highest 80%; lowest 78%; closed at 79%c. New York, Jan. 4.—Quiet and steady; no sales; February option 80c bid.
